AFTERNOON NOTES.

Remember Jim the Penman at The Garland to morrow night.

Trade is only fair to middling with piles of cotton coming in daily, making a puzzle to guess where all the money goes to.

Before selecting your Christmas presents call on E. P. LeDoux, for prices. His stock of jewelry is complete, and prices low, 403 Austin ave.

In a day or two silence will reign in the district court room as it does in the county court room, and the administration of justice be relegated to the justice's courts.

The city treasurer and collector have moved into a corner room next the old room in the court house, and the new office, newly fitted, re-furnished and well lighted is a vast improvement on the old.

Butcher shops are still multiplying and increasing. They are spreading over the suburbs and are getting to be so plentiful that soon a man sitting under his own vine or fig tree will be able to lift up his voice and order a breakfast for breakfast or a roast for dinner.

One of the four committee appointed on Saturday night to canvass for signatures to a petition adverse to the city charter says that nineteen-twentieths of the suburbanians approached sign the petition and are contributing money liberally to fight the charter at Austin.

Special attention is called to No. 403 Austin ave. Mr. LeDoux's complete stock of fine jewelry, consisting of diamonds, watches, fine silverware and brass clocks, fine silverware and etc. He tells us that he is overstocked and in order to reduce it, he will sell at a great reduction during December. He will not be undersold.

The firemen's ball to-night is a bal masque, an affair of rich enjoyment, lots of fun, and yet in all things the pink of propriety. It will be worth the small price of admission asked and ten times as much in the pleasure of expressing a slight appreciation of brave, good men.

Think of the firemen clambering up tottering walls or plunging in a hades of black death-laden smoke or standing in ice and chilled with wintry winds and then let the cockles of the heart warm to the brave fellows and drop a dollar for a ticket and give it to some impetuous youth whose legs are aching to dance.

That subscription of five dollars per month during the winter, for a fund for the benefit of the worthy poor, still drags wearily and heavily forward. One more subscription has come in since the last mention of the subject, who, if not requested to withhold the name, we should say was Eugene Williams. This makes 17 subscribers out of the twenty required, leaving still three subscribers lacking.

Marriage licences were issued to the following parties to-day:

Mr. J. A. Linschmidt, Miss M. Scharlach; Mr. J. L. Breeding, Miss Bettie Thomas; Mr. John R. Frazier, Miss Hallie Flint; Mr. A. W. Smith, Miss Lena Duke; Mr. Walter L. Reese, Miss Zoe Hubby.

Curious?

What? Why the low prices of Xmas goods at W. P. Glenn's Book Store. Call and see. South 4th street.

A fine new stock of watches, diamonds and jewelry at bed rock prices at Mitchell's.

Mr. J. H. Brown has in his employ a most excellent barber. Let him shave you.

The Fireman.

For self sacrifice in the interest of public good, the voluntary fireman of a city may reasonably be placed first in the list. Take the hardship to which a fireman is subject, the dangers he encounters and the loss of time, the broken nights sleep, the interference with pleasure and business, and it is surprising that men are to be found who will give their services gratis year after year when the labor is everything and the reward nothing. The fire companies of Waco which stand first in the state for efficiency and skill have been fighting the fire fiend since Waco was a village, and some of the companies have grown gray in the service. The history of their labors would be replete with accounts of discomforts sustained, hard work, great risks and no pay. Reward they have neither expected nor sought, what has been done, has been done voluntarily, and more than that, Waco firemen have frequently paid money out of their own pockets for the necessary expenses of the department. The least that the public, whose lives and property have for two decades been faithfully watched over with assiduous care by these firemen, is whenever occasion offers, to manifest appreciation of the noble, self-sacrificing and voluntary efforts to which they owe so much. Such an occasion is present to-day. The firemen's ball to-night is for the benefit of the firemen, and the purchase of tickets for the ball should be made ungrudgingly, unsparingly and by hundreds. During the Christmas holidays, friendship, respect and love take the very pretty form of simple gifts, and no more becoming appreciation of the faithful services of the firemen could be made, than the purchase of tickets to their ball. To make the ball a big success would be a slight but pleasing acknowledgment of services that many could only partially repay even if given in good round sums.

The Last Review.

The last review of Baylor University for 1888, began on last Monday and will continue till Thursday evening 4:30 o'clock. The friends and especially the patrons and former students are especially invited. The review of classes will be conducted in the several recitation rooms, till Wednesday noon.

Wednesday evening and Thursday the classes will be reviewed and the orations, essays and music, will be in the Chapel.

A WARM TRIAL.

The Great Injunction Suit.

Examination of witnesses in the application of Kaufman and Runge, asking for the appointment of a receiver for the assets of Eaton, Guinan & Co. began on Saturday, and; being adjourned till to-day, culminated in one of the hottest cases on the records of the district court. The witnesses examined to-day were: Mr. Eaton, Mr. Guinan, Mr. Mailand, Mr. Turner, bookkeeper for Eaton & Guinan, and Mr. W. W. Seley. The examination included the entire transactions of Eaton, Guinan & Co. with the state bank. During the examination into certain acceptances it was developed that $600 of acceptances given by Hamilton Bros. favor, Eaton, Guinan & Co. had disappeared. It was sworn to by three of the first witnesses that those acceptances were in the safe on a certain Saturday and now are not to be found. It was testified by Mr. W. W. Seley that on the signing of a deed of trust by Eaton, Guinan & Co. the collateral he held on the acceptances of Eaton, Guinan & Co. A very hot bit of by-play occurred during the examination of one of the firm who testified that he had collected some $2000, since the first of December.

The court adjourned at twelve, with Mr. Eaton yet to be examined in regard to the missing acceptances, but at two o'clock when court met, his testimony was dispensed with, and arguments of attorneys were heard.

The gist of the trial seems to have turned on the disclosures of Mr. Seley in regard to the transactions between himself and Eaton, Guinan & Co., and his testimony was clear, straightforward and full. After relating the manner in which the indebtedness of the firm became so large, he stated that not being satisfied with the collateral in his hands and which consisted in acceptances of country merchants he brought the transaction to a halt. The result was an agreement for the disposal of the goods to a trustee for his benefit, which he considered better security than the collateral he held and that on the promise of the firm that they would turn the property over to a trustee for his benefit he surrendered all his collateral to them. The decision of the court was rendered a few moments before the News goes to press. The decision as caught is that the injunction so far as Mr. Seley is concerned is dissolved. Continued as to Hamilton Bros., and that a receiver will be appointed for certain property.

I not only sacrifice myself for one, but dye for all.

Mr. Lee Slaughter is, the News regrets to hear, confined at home by illness.

Mr. C. C. Kingsbury and family are moving to Ft. Worth, where Mr. Kingsbury will run a second edition of the Waco Curiosity Shop.

A Letter.

House-keepers, bear in mind “money saved is money made.” Why stay in old ruts when you can live on the fat of the land? For instance, we sell Cutting and Lusk's three-pound goods (assorted) for $2.00 per dozen. Did you ever hear of such a thing? We have everything you can call for. Our morning tourist, Mr. Adams, mounted upon a fleet mustang, will take your order. If you phone us our Mr. Brown will, while wrapping up goods, hook his car over the wire and register your order. And we will deliver with dispatch, care and neatness.

Respectfully,
JAMES R. ROBINSON.

“PROVIDENCE SPRING.”

A Soldier's Belief That its Origin Was Certainly Miraculous.

The Ohio State Journal is indebted to J. T. Harris for the following incident relative to Providence Spring, which broke out at Andersonville, and saved so many lives and banished so much torture: “Having heard so much controversy and argument concerning the origin of ‘Providence Spring’ that broke forth from a side hill in Andersonville prison pen during the war, I thought, knowing as I think I do all about the matter, that it might be a pleasure, if not a duty, to throw such light on the matter as will prove satisfactory to all concerned. “I was confined in Andersonville during the late spring and summer of 1864, and again visited the place last winter (1884 and 1885). The spring in question broke out from the side of a hill on Aug. 13, 1864, without any previous indications of a spring or even dampness at that point. It is true it rained very much during the month of June (twenty-one days), and the argument has been used by some that the spring broke out on account of the rain; but that is absurd for several reasons. In the first place I know that Andersonville prison was underlain with sand to a depth of at least 50 feet (as I have helped to dig a well to that depth near the spring), and it would be impossible for the rain water of June to delay its action in that bank of pure sand until Aug. 13. Secondly, there has certainly been some dry weather since that spring broke out, and if it had only been supplied by seepage water from rains it would fall to flow in dry weather, which has certainly never been the case, as any of the citizens will tell you who live in that vicinity. “Others have claimed that ‘Providence Spring’ was supplied by a branch of the run that went through the camp, tracing its way through the sand to the point at which it broke out, but such is not the case, for the spring at that time flowed from the side of North hill at least eight feet higher than the level of the water in the run. It is not so today, because it has, by the action of its water on the sand, washed a gully or ravine to a depth of about eight feet, and is consequently at present on or nearer the level with the water in the run. Now when the prisoners of war were suffering—yes, dying—for want of pure water (for there was the excrement and filth from the Confederate camp of two regiments washed into the run that furnished the only water we could get until Aug. 13, 1864), ‘Providence Spring’ broke forth from a side hill that had given no such indications, at least since March 1, 1864, at which time it had been first occupied as a camp, and if it had ever run or flowed previous to that time it certainly would have been as natural for it to wash out the eight foot gully or ravine at that time as it has done since. As soon as daylight came and the spring was discovered (first it broke out in the night) there was quite an excitement among the prisoners in its immediate vicinity; in fact, it almost turned into a crazy mob to secure some of the cooling beverage until the prison police took possession of the spring, after which time each man had to fall into line down the hill and take his turn to get his cup or pail filled with the water. Some few of the citizens who live near Andersonville claim that there had been a spring there years before their time, and when questioned about the matter they admitted (at least to me) that they personally knew nothing about it, but had heard so and so from somebody else. Of course the washing out that the spring has done since we first discovered it is sufficient argument to show positively that their talk is without any foundation for truth whatever, and are only (in my opinion) trying to obliterate the providence of Almighty God.
